Our vision of corporate responsibility and the preparation of this Plan

Sustainable development, currently framed by the United Nations 2030 Agenda and its 17 Global Goals, is a responsibility shared by political, social and economic actors that requires decisive action. Corporate Responsibility is our contribution to sustainable development.

We contribute to development by securing the energy supply that is essential for the realization of the fundamental rights of people. We seek to do this not only in compliance with all laws and regulations, but also with relevant international standards as the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises, the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights and the international standard ISO 26000: Guidance on Social Responsibility. This involves the incorporation of human rights and environmental stakeholders' concerns and expectations into the decision-making processes of organizations and to proactively identifying, mitigating and, where necessary, offsetting potential negative impacts along the value chain.

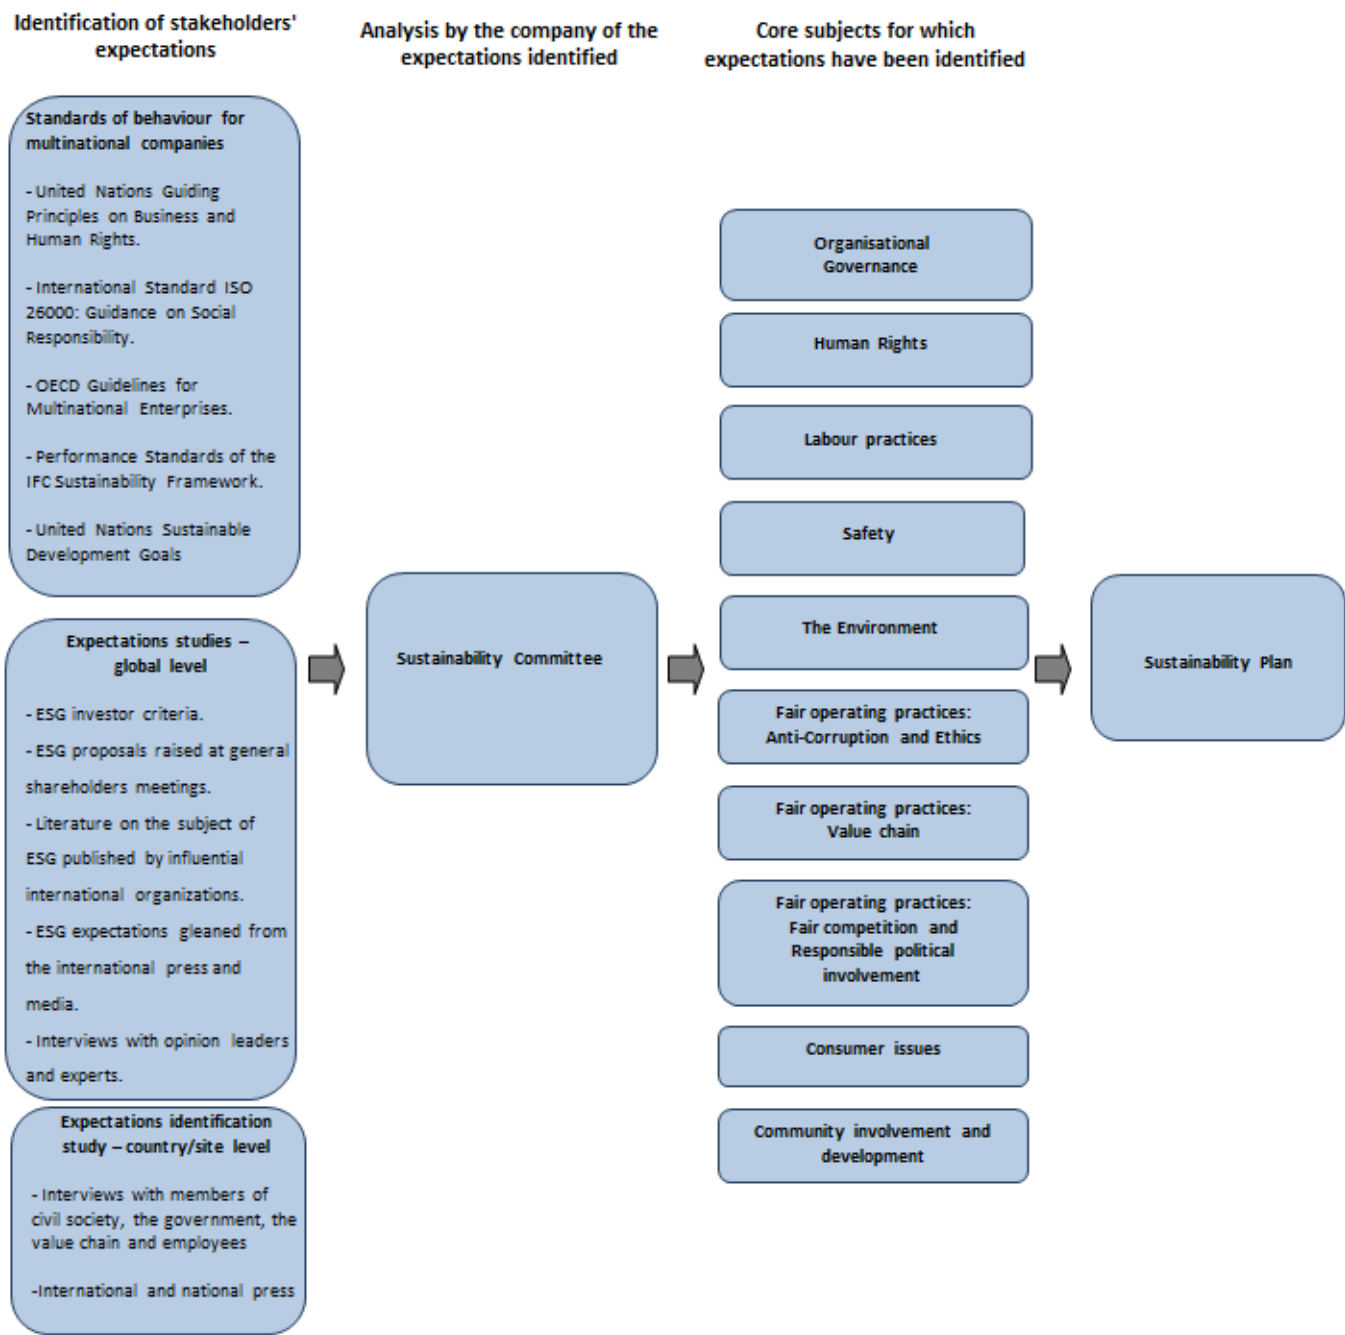

We have identified the concerns and expectations that our stakeholders have on issues related to governance, respect for human rights, safety and other labor practices, environment, management of impacts along the value chain, anticorruption practices, consumers and users issues, and engagement with local communities.

At a global level, this has been carried out through an analysis of the international standards that currently make up the broadest international consensus on the acceptable behavior for a multinational company. In addition, we have developed ad hoc Stakeholder Expectations Surveys to capture country-specific or even site-specific stakeholders' expectations and concerns.

After a process of analysis and consolidation, the results have been looked into by Repsol's Global Sustainability Committee, formed by executive-level representatives of the different business and supporting units of our organization.

This exercise, repeated every year, formally and systematically introduces our stakeholders' expectations and concerns into our decision-making processes. That is a valuable learning process that makes our risk mitigation systems more and more sophisticated and therefore helps setting the course of our organization towards sustainable development.

-Introduction of stakeholders' expectations into the company's decision-making processes-

The result of this analysis is the current Sustainability Plan, which is a public document, the degree of compliance of which will be assessed annually and reported to the company through an annual follow-up report.

Sustainability Plans constitute Repsol contribution to sustainable development and are developed within the company at three levels: global, country level and at operational sites level.

This Plan consists of 20 specific short-term actions with its corresponding implementation indicators, grouped 9 in the ten programs described in the above table, inspired in the core areas of corporate responsibility described in the ISO 26000 International Standard: Guidance on Social Responsibility. These are the areas in which companies have the greatest ability to generate ethical, environmental and social impact.

The Environment

Today Society faces a significant number of environmental challenges that vary from global problems like climate change or the depletion of natural resources, to other local problems that, nevertheless, can have an important impact on the environment where they occur. These include air or water pollution, the generation of waste or the destruction of ecosystems and biodiversity.

The activity of companies invariably contributes to some of these impacts. And these issues have special relevance in sectors such as oil and gas that are characterized by the performance of extractive or industrial activities in large installations. Therefore, it is necessary that companies identify options that enable them to prevent these impacts, minimize them when unavoidable and correct them.

These options include preventing and mitigating environmental risks and impacts through suitable control mechanisms, proper emergency management, operational efficiency, suitable management of water resources and waste, efficient use of materials, regulatory compliance and environmental management systems.

The program also addresses climate change, environmental and biodiversity protection, and the need to champion an environment-oriented culture and conduct through leadership, training, environmental communication and awareness, ensuring due diligence in our commercial relationships, including partner rating processes, audits and controls, training on the subject of environmental protection, and environmental communication and awareness campaigns, among others.

Fair Operating Practices: Anti-Corruption and Ethics

Fair operating practices refer to the way in which organizations deal with others such as business partners, suppliers, contractors, customers, competitors, associations to which they belong, and government agencies and departments.

When ensuring that these relations are carried out in a fair manner, companies have to adapt their practices to criteria such as the prevention of corruption, implementing the necessary policies and practices. They must ensure that their leaders show commitment, motivation and proper supervision when implementing anti-corruption policies, training their employees on how to eradicate bribery and corruption, and offering incentives for any progress made in this regard, encouraging employees, partners and suppliers to report infringements of the company's policies, notifying the authorities of any criminal offences committed and attempting to ensure that the company's partners adopt similar practices.

They are essentially a measure of how ethical a company is in its business with other companies.

The company must attempt to ensure that these relationships are fair, integrating ethical, social and environmental concerns into its purchasing, distribution and recruitment policies; properly monitoring companies with which it has dealings, providing possible support to small and medium-sized enterprises to reach socially responsible objectives, and having proper procurement practices, fair prices, suitable delivery timeframes and stable contracts.

Consumer issues

Companies have a series of responsibilities with the clients that buy their products or arrange their services.

These include the obligation to provide sufficient information on the goods acquired; to guarantee the health and safety of customers when using the company's products; to provide efficient and effective customer care services; and to protect the confidentiality of the data gathered over the course of the commercial transaction.

Companies can meet other important objectives on the path towards sustainable development, such as helping to provide basic services to those people lacking them (an absolute must for a company from the energy sector such as Repsol) and promoting products and information that allow us to migrate towards a more sustainable consumption model. They must also factor in to their business everything relating to customer care services, support and resolution of grievances and claims, and personal data protection.

Community involvement and development

Community involvement and development stems from the identification of existing stakeholders and involvement with them in the management and minimization of the impacts that the organization's activities might generate.

Similarly, by actively involving and developing the local community the company can become an asset serving society and the community, although in this process the community frequently raises different and sometimes opposing interests, which the company must weigh up together. Shared responsibility is needed to promote the community's well-being as a common goal. The company must liaise with the different groups representing the community to establish priorities for its social investment, with particular attention paid to vulnerable groups.

Companies can help boost local development by creating jobs, improving relations with public authorities, enhancing the capacities and opportunities of local suppliers, and rolling out cultural, healthcare, social and environmental initiatives and programs.

In order to meet the expectations of its stakeholders on the subject of community involvement and development, the Repsol group has specific management systems in place which can be consulted on the corporate website repsol.com.

Process of updating the Plan

This Sustainability Plan is a dynamic document.

Each year we will give an account of the extent to which the actions that make up this Plan have been carried out by publishing a monitoring report.

Moreover, given that the expectations of our stakeholders and the issues that concern them are changeable and subject to the evolution of events during the course of the year, this Plan will be updated annually with new actions or the reformulation of existing ones to adapt them to the new situation.

The successive updates of the plan will leave behind them a trail of completed actions that, collectively, are a contribution of our company to sustainable development.
